The invention relates to a method of and apparatus for measuring parameters of an exhaust-gas flow, in which a signal pulse is generated periodically at a frequency which is a function of at least one parameter indicative of the parameters of the exhaust-gas flow. An apparatus for measuring the constituents of an exhaust-gas flow which is emitted by a vehicle engine is described in German Published Patent Application No. 196 09 742. This known apparatus has a measuring cell with a cylindrical housing having a sample inlet and an outlet, by way of which the exhaust-gas flow in the direction of flow is admitted to the interior of the measuring cell, where it flows through the measuring element. The measuring element is a rod or wire whose electric conductivity depends on the mass of the pollutants in the exhaust-gas flow and which is exposed to the exhaust-gas flow. The measuring element has at least one sensor for generating and emitting a signal pulse at a frequency which is a function of the mass of the pollutants. The signal pulses emitted by the signal generators are converted into a signal which contains information about the pollutants. The apparatus also includes a measuring circuit which is connected to the measuring cell for receiving the signal pulses and which evaluates the information about the pollutants contained in the signal pulses. German Published Patent Application No. 197 22 609 describes another device for measuring the parameters of an exhaust-gas flow. In this device, the parameters of the exhaust-gas flow are detected by measuring the level of an electric potential which is dependent on an electric property of the exhaust-gas flow. The measured electric potential is generated periodically with a frequency which is a function of at least one parameter, particularly the temperature and the density of the exhaust-gas flow. For evaluating the measured electric potential, a downstream-side filter is connected to the exhaust-gas flow which contains an inlet for receiving the electric potential and an outlet for leaving it. The filter output electric potentials are supplied to an evaluating circuit which b7e8fdf5c8

DP MP3 Converter is a simplistic tool which allows you to encode audio tracks from the MP3 format to the WAV and OGG extensions. The tool can be easily handled by first-time users. The interface of the program is based on a standard window in which you can import MP3 audio tracks by using the file browser only, because the "drag and drop" method is not supported. Batch processing is not allowed. So, all you have to do is specify the output destination, in order to proceed with the conversion task. Furthermore, you can adjust the OGG compression quality and set the CPU usage level. The simple-to-use software runs on a low-to-moderate amount of system resources, has a good response time and quickly finishes a conversion job. The sound quality of the output audio tracks is preserved at a very good level. We haven't come across any errors during our tests and DP MP3 Converter didn't freeze or crash. On the other hand, the interface is outdated, there is no help file available and you cannot specify the output filename. But the fact that batch processing is not supported is the biggest disadvantage of DP MP3 Converter. Also, you cannot configure audio settings (e.g. sample frequency rate, bit rate, channel mode). We recommend you look for something more advanced than DP MP3 Converter. Download Notes: This tool comes from the TuneSoft iTunes rip tool package. I can't get the 1st item to work. It won't create the temp files. Joined: 05 Jul 2005 Posts: 1736 Posted: Sun Aug 17, 2017 5:12 pm cooper wrote: I can't get the 1st item to work. It won't create the temp files. Have you tried to switch off the "Folder Creation" option? If you select "Always Use temp files", then you don't need to create a temp folder. When you convert iTunes rip to MP3, you can choose to "Convert using temp files" and this will create a folder for you called \Music\iTunes\iTunes MP3 Files\ Joined: 06 Jun 2006 Posts: 14959 Posted: Sun Aug 17, 2017 8:34 pm cooper wrote: mylon wrote: vrt-support wrote: It appears that the program is not able to create proper temp folders with this update
